

Receive Assistance With Grant Writing

As demand for grant funding continues to exceed supply, awards have become increasingly competitive to win. It is important to identify the best grant opportunities and produce high-quality, compelling proposals that win a higher volume of grants. Including highly qualified, experienced and accomplished grant writers in the development of your proposal can give you a decisive edge when competing for funding.

Whether you have won multiple grants or none at all, finding opportunities and writing proposals are time-consuming endeavors. Due diligence requires thorough exploratory research to determine the full details and implications of grant submissions. Writing proposals requires attention to parameters, coordinating the efforts of a team, and balancing the needs of your organization with the requirements of the grant. Furthermore, all of this may need to be done on a tight timeline—often in less than a month.

Engage Us to Make The Most of Your Grant

We are a grant writing unit affiliated with the NC State University Office of Outreach & Engagement and the Industry Expansion Solutions (IES). Our team offers leadership and technical assistance in research, program design and grant proposal writing, often in complex environments and in a wide variety of areas—from education, to business and industry, to military and government agencies.

Our grant writing services are based on your needs and capacities—ranging from searching for grants, to assisting your grant writing team to leading proposal development—with the least burden on your staff. These approaches are determined in partnership with you and your team to ensure maximum efficiency and return on investment.
